

November 2, 2021

Hello

Welcome to November! How quickly has the year gone by, in less than 60 days we will see 2022 – and I still laugh at how some people thought the world was going to end on New Year’s Eve 2000. And here we are 22 years later!

We had a fantastic Zooming Skills Night thanks to Richard Pikul and his assistant Michael Pinto. If you would like to view this or our demonstrator from October, Frank Didomizio you need to email me and request the link. We do not have a ‘members only’ section on the website, so we can’t post open links to secure videos, especially the timed ones of our presenters.

I wanted to share Alan Wright’s projects of late; he has been making wooden toys. See the pictures below. These are wonderful in a few different ways – they work! The fork lift goes up and down, the dump truck dumps and he has many turned parts – but best of all Alan designed these on his own! What a wonderful job and I wanted to give him a shout out for great fun work!

At the end of the skills night last week, I showed a quick connect/disconnect for dust collection that Ivan made me, very simple 3D printed pieces. One end goes on the hose, the other on the tool (table saw, planer, sander etc). If anyone is interested, I can print them for you at $25 each piece. Let me know.

I know this shouldn’t be a buy and sell email, but I have been contacted by someone who has some wood shorts that he wants to sell; sizes range from 20-30 inches long, by 3-6 inches wide. I have an excel spreadsheet of what he has and how much he wants for it, if anyone is interested please reach out to me and I will send the email it to you.

The AAW has a Woodturning Fundamental session – if you are an AAW member cost is $29 for two days and not a member, $49 – here is the link:

I know this was a short and sweet email, even as president I can’t tell you who our upcoming demonstrator is for November... stay tuned!

Until then,

Stay healthy, stay happy and keep smiling and turn a little 😊
